

Sarah McLachlan – Train wreck (2005)

Would your love in all its finery
Tear at the darkness all around me
Until I can feel again
Until I can breathe again

'Cause I'm a train wreck waiting to happen
Waiting for someone to come pick me up off the tracks
A wild fire born of frustration
Born of the one love that gets me so high
I've no fear at all

Would your eyes like midnight fireflies
Light up the trenches where my heart lies
Until I can see again
To find my way back again

To fall so deep into you
Lose myself completely
In your sweet embrace
All my pains erased

From your mouth its all that I wish
The mercy of your lips just one kiss
Until I can breathe again
So that I can sing again
